Data, analyses, reports, statistics and other kind of content published on Xtremcoin Website are collected automatically from 3rd parties and public resources by means of a software and processed and published without any change or routing.

Transferring money to the Account by credit or debit card

User identifies a credit card or debit card in his/her Account. For this operation, User adds the card from "Add New Card" option listed under the "Connected Cards" menu. User, then, verifies the card by following the related steps. Cards to be added to the User's Account must belong to the User. Otherwise, the related operation will not be completed or performed.

Transferring money to the Account by bank remittance

The User may transfer a certain amount of money in Turkish Liras via EFT / remittance from the bank account of the User. The bank account, to/from which the user will transfer money, must belong to the User. Otherwise, the related operation will not be completed or performed.

In order to complete the EFT / remittance, user has to enter the "money transfer code", which is issued by Xtremcoin specifically for the User, on the notification section of the related transfer.

If the User wants to withdraw all/a part of the money in his Account, the User shall notify Xtremcoin of its bank account information by means of Xtremcoin Website Support Section. If the transferred amount of money is more than the amount of money, which the User requested to withdraw, the User shall immediately notify Xtremcoin and return the excess amount to Xtremcoin.

The User agrees that Turkish Lira deposit and withdrawal requests made under the scope of this section may be delayed for a certain period of time, if required by Xtremcoin. The bank account, to/from which the user will transfer money, shall be active and opened by the name of the User (user name preferred on Xtremcoin Platform); otherwise, the User shall not be able to perform the transactions subject to this article. Requests for depositing and withdrawing may be delayed due to bank applications or Xtremcoin's internal operations. The User accepts and declares that the transaction, deposit or withdrawal requests may be delayed due to the reasons explained above. In addition to this, the User accepts and declares also that Xtremcoin will be free of any type legal or monetary responsibility, if the delay is caused by bank transactions, inactive bank account or misinformation caused by the User. The User accepts and declares that if the User wants to cancel the deposit or withdrawal transaction, The User shall contact with Xtremcoin Platform for cancelling the related transaction. The User accepts and declares that the User Account could be suspended, if the User directly communicates with bank for cancellation of any transaction.

Transferring Cryptocurrency to the Account

The User can transfer Cryptocurrency from a cryptocurrency wallet to Xtremcoin Cryptocurrency Wallet. Balance, created by transferring Cryptocurrency to the Account, can be used to buy/sell Cryptocurrencies or make payments to 3rd parties with Cryptocurrencies.

The User enters an order on the Xtremcoin Platform by determining the price and the amount for buying and selling Cryptocurrency. User's orders are listed in a table called "depth table". As soon as a User's order matches with an order of another User, trade order is completed and the parties become binding with their offer and acceptance. In other words, a Cryptocurrency purchase is completed when two orders entered by different User matches. Users accept that this transaction is irrevocable, one it is completed.

Unmatched orders will continue to be listed in the depth table until they match, or until the order is cancelled by the issuing User.

All Cryptocurrency operations performed through the Xtremcoin Platform are performed by Users and between Users. Xtremcoin is not a party to any of Cryptocurrency exchanges performed through Xtremcoin Platform and is not responsible for the relations and transactions between the Users.
